

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

What seems at the present time a more or less amusing incident ended in the lives of the railroad section gang, of which Michael Peters is foreman, operating out of Danielson. The crew was out on the main line near Danville with the gasoline car that takes them about and which years back replaced the old-fashioned hand car, when the car was reversed in an effort to make a getaway from danger, but the freight gained so rapidly that the section men leaped off the car and it went rolling, all by its lonesome, down the track. Near Danielson it came into collision with a northbound freight. The gas car was somewhat damaged, but no one was injured and that is considered a really saving stroke.

At St. Anne's church in Fall River today (Friday) funeral services are to be held for Mrs. Orlin Richards, 73, widow of Peter Richards. Mrs. Richards was for many years a resident of the town of Killingly, living in Danielson and at last place operated by her husband in the dairy section of the town. She was born in poor health for a number of years. Her death occurred in Fall River Wednesday morning. Mrs. Richards leaves a son, George, resident in Fall River, two brothers, Joseph Dragon of Danielson and George Dragon of Springfield, and a sister, Mrs. Mary Domingue of Carter street.

Representatives of various church and fraternal societies of St. James' parish are engaged this week in creating a fund that is to be used as a testimonial to Rev. M. J. Ginet, M. S., for eight years pastor of St. James' parish and now located at Fitchburg. The effort is in honor of Father Ginet's ordination to the priesthood occurs this week.

Appreciative of the remarkable spiritual and temporal labors he performed during his Danielson pastorate, hundreds of his former parishioners are happy over their opportunity to materially express their good will toward a missionary who gave so much of his strength and best years to their parish, and who left here bearing a deep-seated memory of their expressions of regret over his transfer.

It has not been announced just when the entertainment is to be held in Father Ginet's honor and the presentation of the parish gift to him is to be made, but it is expected that it will be some time during the early part of the coming month.

Hundreds of mill workers in the towns of Killingly and Plainfield are being made the object of solicited interest by representatives of the textile unions that are engaged in such a bitter, and at the present time deadlocked, industrial strife in the Pawtuxet valley and at other points in Rhode Island, notably Pawtucket, and at certain points in New Hampshire.

While the effort is being kept more or less under cover, representatives of certain textile workers' unions are laboring assiduously in Plainfield and Danielson to form locals of these unions.

This is of particular interest in view of the fact that there are no union workers, except possibly a stray individual, in Plainfield's or Killingly's cotton manufacturing plants.

Plainfield, Moosup, Wauregan, and Danielson are the centers in the immediate territory where the effort to organize is being made. Much reliance on the part of those who know about the movement marks the work that is being done. It is known, however, that the union organizers have made a small start and have obtained a few members.

The great bulk of the hundreds of cotton mill operatives in the towns mentioned have not warmed up to the unionization program, however, and it is indicated, are not likely to. They are close students of the times and are thoroughly well informed as to what has happened where the union works have gone out on strike and of the little progress toward success that has been made—and they are not anxious for weeks of idleness and long periods of being without money, and the hardships that are attendant upon that fundless condition.

They have not overlooked the fact, either, that striking mill workers from the Pawtuxet valley are constantly canvassing non-union mills hereabouts looking for jobs under working conditions that they are out on strike against in Rhode Island.

Every previous effort to unionize workers in the cotton mills in this territory has met with flat failure, and there is no indication of a prospect of a greater success in the present movement. Deciding for themselves, the cotton mill workers hereabouts have always avoided union affiliation, and at this particular time the great majority of them are showing no favorable interest at all in the plan to organize them.

They are at work and getting a pay envelope every week, and those are two big and important facts against unionization and strike arguments carry very little weight at this particular time, when from 4,000,000 to 5,000,000 workers are out of employment throughout the country.

Frank Barber, rated one of the classic duckpin bowlers in Connecticut, has returned from a New Haven conference at which he offered to enter in what has been described in Connecticut papers as the state duckpin tournament.

Mr. Barber didn't get much satisfaction out of that trip. He was told that he lived in a too distant corner of the state to be allowed to enter—and that was about the end of the proposition, insofar as Mr. Barber is concerned. Mr. Barber seems wholly right, however, in his claim that the name of the tournament should be revised so that it might be known as the New Haven-Bridgeport-Waterbury duckpin tournament, rather than the state tournament—an idea that he suggested to the bowlers he met in New Haven.

Mr. Barber has written a Waterbury paper about the matter, and the letting of him out will be given due publicity in that corner of Connecticut next Sunday.

Mr. Barber has arranged a match with Hallock of New London, the first games to be rolled here next Tuesday, and other games at New London next Thursday evening.

Boys from two grades of St. James' parochial school were engaged in a search for the missing Roy boy Thursday afternoon. They covered carefully much of the territory about Danielson, and others carried the search over to Goodyear and other surrounding villages.

PUTNAM

Tomorrow (Saturday) will bring many boys to this city from various parts of eastern Connecticut to participate in the older boys' conference scheduled for the next two days. The delegates will check in and register between 9 and 10:30 o'clock Saturday morning. The first session of the conference is called to meet Saturday morning at 10:30 at the Congregational church and will be public. The afternoon session at the Congregational church at 2 o'clock.

Saturday's programs will be of special interest to the public and those in charge hope that there will be widespread interest.

Saturday evening at 6:30 brings the conference banquet at the Baptist church.

Prominent citizens of Putnam are co-operating to make the conference a success. Sunday morning all the delegates will attend church services, and Sunday afternoon at the Congregational church at 2 o'clock there is to be a service in which the boys and their fathers will participate.

There is interest here in the fact that Supt. Anson B. Handy of the schools in Stafford Springs, formerly principal of Putnam High school, is leaving that place today for Washington in company with members of the senior class of the Stafford High school. Superintendent Handy has arranged a sightseeing and educational tour that will occupy about a week. Many points of national and historic interest about Washington are to be visited.

Tuesday of next week is set for the annual open night at the state trade school in this city. All departments will be in actual operation from 7:30 to 9:30 p. m., affording all who may visit the school an insight into what the institution is doing to make good mechanics and artisans of various kinds of young people who are studying there. There will also be an exhibit of work done by students. The school officials are especially anxious that parents of students should take advantage of this opportunity to visit the school and all who are interested in educational work also are especially invited to attend.

Killing of wild geese, now almost daily northward-bound over territory hereabouts, is against the law. This fact has surprised some sportsmen who always have been anxious for a shot at a wild goose.

Not a trace of Rol has been found. There are many theories as to what may have become of him, but all little better than guesses. Chief McFarland has been anxiously searching for some information that might lead to the finding of the boy.

The first building enterprise of the spring season is under way on the triangle of land between Main, Water and Cottage streets, at the bridge over the Assawamuck river. The plot is to be used for the construction of an elaborate filling station for automobiles, the plan to be much after the style that one sees in the cities and larger towns of New England. A small store that will cater to the refreshment needs of patrons of the place also will be erected on the site.

Use of horses by the local fire department will be dispensed with as a result of the decision of borough officials to purchase a used Cadillac car which has been the property of L. S. Ingrams of the West Side and which the fire department has been using for some time. The automobile has been purchased at a very reasonable price and is in good condition to perform such service as it is required of it in its new field of activity. The ladder truck will be partly rebuilt so as to attach it to the chassis of the automobile.

It has been difficult of late to obtain horses to haul the ladder truck at time of fire calls, so the new arrangement was suggested by Chief A. P. Woodward and has met the approval of the department.

According to very reliable people, about a dozen less than a million blackbirds (some insisted they were starlings) flocked into the trees on Broad street, near Potter street, early Thursday afternoon and soon had the neighborhood at the doors—started at all the chatter and clatter the feathered host was indulging in.

No interpreter of bird language being at hand, the subject of the noisy controversy, if it was such, remains a mystery. It appears to observers that the birds had just arrived from somewhere, possibly the south, and that there was some special occasion for the big powwow that went on.

E. H. Jacobs, for whom one of Danielson's manufacturing concerns is named, was reported Thursday as seriously ill in Boston.

Mrs. Clara Nado, school teacher, left for Boston Thursday for two weeks' visit with her sister. Mrs. Nado has been ill away from home for a rest.

Cashier Francis E. Storer of the Windham County National bank was in town Thursday on a business trip.

State highway department crews are engaged in patching holes in the trunk line route in this territory.

Attention is called by local workers in the Day Kimball Hospital guild to the fact that the institution is in need of supplies such as soap, towels, tablecloths, napkins, bath, hand and dish towels, face cloths, birdseye linen, pajamas, etc., etc.

Rev. M. S. Stocking will be at Pawtucket during the coming week attending the annual Southern New England conference of Methodist churches.

Rev. Denton J. Neely, former pastor, will be the speaker at the annual roll call and supper at the Baptist church April 14th.

gossip, but it is a fact, nevertheless, as indicated by the finding of a young man at Canterbury this week after he had been brought into court by County Game Warden Harry E. Battey, who is making his headquarters in the town of Woodstock at present.

An appeal to the supreme court of this state has been taken by Dr. James P. McKenna of Providence in a case decided against him in the superior court for this county and in which J. W. Whipple, Allen Averill and Sgt. George W. Laird of the Putnam police force were defendants. Dr. McKenna sued for $50,000, alleging false arrest. He was taken into custody one night, many months ago, after his car had been in collision on the state highway to Pomfret, near the Gary school, with a machine owned and driven by J. W. Whipple of this city. After being held at the police station here for a time, he was released. Later the charges filed against him and subsequently brought the suit to which reference is herein made.

Serious as their condition seemed after the destructive ice storm of last November, County Agents E. L. Davis feels confident that the badly damaged trees in the towns of Woodstock, Thompson and Pomfret will not appear to have been so much hurt after the foliage of the coming season is out and the annual yearly will be in New Orleans a week. An interesting program has been arranged there for the entertainment of the visitors, who also have a splendid sightseeing itinerary for the return trip. Slide trips to St. Augustine and Jacksonville are included in the arrangements for the trip, which also will afford visits to Chattanooga and through the Shenandoah valley. The party will reach New Haven May 2 on the return trip.

Rev. John C. Stoddard, pastor of the Baptist church of this city is to open at the South Woodstock Baptist church on Tuesday evening of next week a series of revival meetings that will continue for two weeks. Rev. Mr. Stoddard will assist the pastor during the first week of meetings, while Rev. R. E. Gates of Hartford will be at South Woodstock for the second week.

Attorneys representing all the centers in Windham county, also representing New London county cities and towns, will be in this city (Friday) morning for the opening of the March term superior court. Cases will be assigned for trial next week and during April.

A degree was conferred upon candidates Thursday evening at a special convocation of Putnam chapter, R. A. M., which also is to meet next week to confer a degree.

County Agent Frank L. Davis will be in Plainfield today (Friday) attending a dairy institute.

There seems to be little present concern in this city over the prospect of a strike of 600,000 coal miners; spring is here, and the fuel problem is not so acute as it might be at some other times of the year.

Mercury at 15 degrees above zero early Thursday morning was another evidence that spring officially is here—but has not really arrived.

Mrs. J. C. Whiting of Los Angeles is a guest of Mrs. C. D. Arnold.

The date has not been set for the banquet of the Putnam fire department, but this is an event scheduled for the next distant future.

Thursday morning at St. Mary's church funeral services for Florence Teresa Fortney were held. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery. The child, one year old, was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Fortney of High street.

Rev. S. J. A. Rook, pastor of the Methodist church, will be in Pawtucket next week attending the sessions of the Southern New England conference.

Pressure exerted upon them by purchasers of milk from their herds is having the effect of bringing numerous farmers hereabouts around to adopt the plan of having their dairy cattle supplied with tuberculin tests.

Major David Main of Hartford conducted the Salvation Army service at the army hall Thursday evening. He was assisted by Bandmaster McCabe of South Manchester.

Mrs. William F. Perry of South Main street had members of the Woman's auxiliary of St. Alban's church at her home for a meeting Thursday afternoon.

Strikers from Massachusetts and Rhode Island mill towns where the big textile controversy is on continue to come into this territory looking for work, incidentally being willing to labor in non-union mills, though they are striking members of textile unions.

Mrs. Edward Hatch of Danielson has emceed the employ of Bugbee & Wulf of this city as a member of the office force.

At a recent special town meeting in Woodstock, Charles F. Wier, at the time in the course of criticism of high costs of town administration said that teachers' salaries are too high—and suggested that they be cut 20 per cent.

Renegade grange of Woodstock has adopted resolution condemning the proposed coal strike as use of the weapons of human suffering and misery in order to gain an objective. The grange also

Sunday the local patrol of Boy Scouts took a 25 mile hike to Foster's Gold Mine in North Sterling. They explored the mine and brought back many interesting specimens.
